Most new development projects which have been granted land use permits (Site Plan Reviews, Conditional Use Permits, Planned Unit Developments, etc.) will have restricted hours and days on which construction can occur. Generally, the limited hours and days of construction are Monday through Friday from 7:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. There can be exceptions to the limited hours and days but only with written permission from the Building Official and only if the extended hours and/or days do not adversely affect adjacent neighborhoods.

Small projects which, by Zoning Ordinance standards, do not need a land use permit, will not have limitations on either the hours or days that construction can occur. However, construction activities occurring during the night which are disruptive to a neighborhood may be considered “disturbing the peace” and be subject to police enforcement.
